
Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by pele4prez - 2008/04/23 13:06

Great game, but unfortunately the hoosiers lost...

check out the post-game wrap-up (with press conference video)

as well as an interesting read on the cultural significance/impact of the game enjoy!

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by rziegler - 2008/04/23 21:41

Game account in our college section here:

http://topdrawersoccer.com/component/option,com_topdrawer/Itemid,251/nid,2947/

So how did IU look? There's some major personnel changing with Mike Freitag's group, especially in the defense. No shame in this result against a U20 National Team, but I'm interested to know how they played. It sounds like the 2nd half was better than the first for IU.

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by AZeda2 - 2008/06/02 14:44

I think that this isnt a bad result for IU especially in a spring game. I think that games like this with high profile teams such as the U20 mexican naitonal team are great for college soccer exposure. How do you guys think IU will be next year??? Hopefully they return to the college soccer powerhouse they have been in the past, it looks like theyre a fun team to watch play.

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by mbman - 2008/06/02 15:05

WHO CARES ABOUT SPRING GAMES!?!?!?!?! its not like they played the FULL mexican national team come on. What i really wanna know is if anyone thinks IU will make a decent College Cup run in 08'???

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by BFUDGE - 2008/06/02 15:50

Yeah i would like to know how theyre gonna be next year. Someone give us the IU 08' season preview!!!

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by ZMZMZM - 2008/06/02 16:57

YES PLEASE!!!! :woohoo: i currently live near the IU campus and me and my son are big fans of IU soccer, lets hear about next years team!!!

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by SMclaughlin33 - 2008/06/04 12:01

I cant give you the season preview, but im sure the website will do something to preview the college teams for the coming season. Dont you think??

=====

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by Soccerstar54 - 2008/06/04 12:34

I'm sure they will. They seem to really be on top of college and other youth soccer. I also think that spring games like this are a great way to draw fans into the college game. The more fans, the better the atmosphere, the better the quality of players that want to play in college instead of going to europe. Hey its better than playing a junior college or sunday league team!!!

=====

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by lazer3 - 2008/06/25 11:22

I would have to agree. The more people that see the college game will see that it isnt that bad after all. The more fans, the better it is for the players, and it attracts better recruits. Take Santa Barbara or Maryland for example... their facilities and fan base is almost unmatched!!! no wonder they get the better players

=====

Re:Post-Game Material on the IU-Mexico U-20 Game

Posted by ZMZMZM - 2008/07/02 15:49

I agree. Just as with college recruiting for football and basketball, many players are being drawn to schools with the prime facilities . AS with say U of Oregon for football, schools like creighton and UCLA are drawing kids with their looks and not the skill of thier team. What do you think about this?

=====